FFBFFL WEEK 1 RECAP

It's week one and I already want to kill myself

Week 1 is officially in the books, and the league wasted no time returning to its usual mix of debauchery and retardation. A few teams came out firing, others barely escaped with their dignity, and several managers are already being haunted by the points they left on the bench. The defending ~~champion~~ fag survived the opening weekend, the league's perennial contenders made their presence known, and a couple of longtime punching bags suddenly looked dangerous (I'm talking about you Jack). And if you're freaking out don't trip bro, it's only week one. Welcome back to the FFBFFL.

To separate good teams from lucky ones, the League Average Table gives every manager a second weekly result based solely on whether they outscored the league average. The Total Record combines that result with the actual head-to-head outcome, rewarding teams that both win their matchup and put up a respectable score. While head to head matchup scores ultimately dictate who wins the league, this metric allows us to see who is has the most vs least fantasty football luck

WEEK 1 SCORE BOARD

League average 132.98 | The final column ignores the matchup and asks only whether a team cleared the weekly mean.

Martinsburg Man Whores	102.80	-30.18	0 – 1	0 – 1	0 – 2

Fraud watch: Tyler, Jakob and Dom Campese are 1-0 below the mean. Bad-beat desk: Abhik, Justin and Russ scored above average and still took an L.

WEEKLY HARDWARE

THE CURT CIGNETTI "I GOT A BIGGER GUN" AWARD

Cruise Control - Mikey's 173.75 was 40.77 above the league average and 8.15 clear of second place.

THE CAM WARD WE ASS AWARD

Martinsburg Man Whores - A league-low 102.80, with a zero at tight end and only two starters above 14 points.

THE ANTONIO BROWN DICKHEAD OF THE WEEK AWARD

Yes Chef - Preston left Jalen Coker's 37.8 on the bench and started Quentin Johnston's 3.7. One click would have changed the loss into a 28.75-point win.

GAMES

Chill, it's only week 1

MOMMY'S LITTLE ALLSTARS 116.40 WE ARE CHRISTIAN KIRK 113.65

Tyler began his title defense by surviving a 2.75-point scare, powered almost entirely by Josh Allen and Jahmyr Gibbs, who combined for 79.6 points. I answered with 55.5 from Bijan Robinson and Javonte Williams, but unfortunately for me the Bo Caine was cut with Baby Laxative as Jaylen Waddled himself to the bathroom with pants full of Diarrhea totaling 1.2 total points.

MOTHMAN FOR MVP 117.25 YES CHEF 111.90

Jakob stole one behind Chris Olave's 29.2 and a 22-point Jaguars defense despite getting 5.65 from Matthew Stafford. Meanwhile Preston, left Jalen Coker's 37.8 on the bench while Quentin Johnston looked worse than his National Championship game against UGA. That single correction turns a 5.35-point loss into a 146.00-117.25 blowout.

BEN SIMMONS BLOWS 123.10 MARTINSBURG MAN WHORES 102.80

Dom got 31.2 from Justin Jefferson and 23.3 from Jayden Daniels, then watched a modest 123.1 hold up comfortably. Lamar Jackson supplied 33.2 for Dylan, but Kyle 'I have Stinky Arm' Pitts posted a zero and Tony Soprano Pollard's night cut to black only adding only 4.4. Dylan finished last in points in 2025 and opened 2026 last in points again. At least the Melania review exposed him to long-term pain

EL LUCHADORES 165.60 TEAM CRASHEE RICE 144.90

Jack detonated for 165.6, a full 55.7 points above his career scoring average, with Derrick 'Prince' Henry, Jaxonuary 6 Dart, Zay 'can you smell the Flowers' David 'Aruba, Jamacia, ooh, I wanna take ya, to Bermuda, Bahama, come on pretty mama, Key Largo' Montgomery and all clearing 28 points!!! His total beats every team this week except Cruise Control and offers a violent rebuttal to that league-worst .309 career winning percentage. Abhik scored 144.9 (nearly 12 above the league mean) and still lost by 20.7.

BRING BACK THE 4 FOR 4 152.95 JAYDEN NO 5 136.35

Dylan Williams rolled up 152.95 behind Jalen Hurts 'When I Pee', D'Andre 'Taylor' Swift and Jaxon Smith-can a Njigba borrow a French fry, plus a 20-point Chiefs defense. Russ cleared the weekly average and still lost, which is fitting for the manager who owns the league's best career win rate and no title. Tyler Shough On my Knob and Matthew Golden Shower pissed on Dak Percocet and Courtland 'I need some Cetaphil' Sutton by 27.55 from the bench; both swaps would have changed the outcome.

CRUISE CONTROL 173.75 INHOOD TRASH PANDAS 137.10

Mikey's engines are purring to start the season as he posted the week's high score with 173.75 as Caleb 'I like ya, and I want ya' Williams went off for 43.95 and Ashton Jeanty added 33.7. Justin scored above the league average, got 27 from Pittsburgh's steel curtain and still lost by 36.65. The two managers entered the season tied for the most all-time wins at 56; this head-to-head result makes Mikey the first to 57. Seven seasons of shared history, settled for now by a public execution.
