THE RECORD

Nobody Is Undefeated

Two weeks of results, one overdue public accounting, and a commissioner currently suspended by himself.

BY DOMINICK CIFELLI, COMMISSIONER · FFBFFL · OCTOBER 2026

A BRIEFING FROM THE COMMISSIONER

Quick housekeeping before anything else. The idiot occupying the other half of my brain, Dominick Antonio Cifelli, M.S., West Virginia University, has been placed on suspension. Please direct all questions regarding league guidelines, rules and regulations to the co-commissioner, ~~Apu~~bhik. That strikeout will make sense shortly.

This does not mean Abhik will be writing the weekly recaps or updating the league website, which still runs as a semi-mobile app you can open on your phone. Your password is your last name. Once you are signed in you can edit your profile and whatever other stupid shit you feel like changing.

PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

Last Saturday we recognized a beautiful bond in matrimony between our league's very own Frank and football. You know what that means. These two offensive-minded freaks can now legally fuck under the watchful eye of John Elway. Time to join as one flesh by pounding it.

NOW LET'S GET TO IT

How fucking hysterical is it that Abhik sits on top of the power rankings the same exact week Apu gets brought back to the Simpsons? You cannot make this shit up.

Preston has crawled out of his own grave, neither of our undefeated owners made it through the fortnight with a perfect record, and Mikey spent two weeks trying to figure out how to start the Cruise Mobile. This double issue covers every game from Weeks 5 and 6, the lineup decisions that actually decided them, and the evidence behind everyone's increasingly selective version of events.

Abhik's 193.50 lands tenth among all scores in the archive and eighth among regular-season games. My 156.25 becomes the season's highest score in a loss, replacing my own 154.10. Glad somebody around here is committed to breaking records.

TWO WEEKS BY THE NUMBERS CUMULATIVE THROUGH WEEK 6

The Ledger

Actual record, record against the weekly mean, and the two combined

Each week hands out one actual result and one result against that week's league mean. The records below are cumulative through Week 6, so the total column combines both for twelve decisions. Teams are ordered by total wins, then by season points scored.

TEAM	W5 PTS	VS AVG	W6 PTS	VS AVG	ACTUAL	AVG	TOTAL
Team Crashee Rice	193.50	+60.72	149.25	+35.38	5–1	5–1	10–2

Mothman for MVP	120.75	-12.03	108.10	-5.77	4–2	3–3	7–5
El Luchadores	158.05	+25.27	96.65	-17.22	4–2	3–3	7–5
Inhood Trash Pandas	93.45	-39.33	137.10	+23.23	2–4	4–2	6–6

Jayden No. 5	132.40	-0.38	108.10	-5.77	3–3	2–4	5–7
Cruise Control	85.05	-47.73	82.10	-31.77	2–4	2–4	4–8
Martinsburg Man Whores	113.45	-19.33	108.40	-5.47	1–5	2–4	3–9
Ben Simmons Blows	119.95	-12.83	116.50	+2.63	2–4	1–5	3–9

Differences use the displayed weekly means. Average records use the unrounded mean. The Week 5 to Week 6 scoring decline is calculated before rounding.

Dylan W. and Abhik cleared both weekly means and won both games, the only clean sweeps on the board. Jack and Preston also went 2–0, but each of them needed a below-average win to do it. Tyler is 5–1 against people and 1–5 against the mean, a statistical arrangement that deserves its own congressional hearing.

HOW THE AVERAGE TEST WORKS

Every team collects two results a week. The first is the one on the schedule. The second compares its score with the league mean for that week, calculated before rounding, so a team above the mean banks a win no matter who it happened to play. Add the two together and every completed week is worth two decisions, which is how six weeks produces a twelve-decision total. League scoring fell 226.85 points from Week 5 to Week 6, a drop of 14.2 percent, which is how the mean slid from 132.78 to 113.87 and why so many Week 6 losers still beat the average.

The Week We Owe You

League average 132.78 · Six games · Final scores

BRING BACK THE 4 FOR 4 — 171.15
WE ARE CHRISTIAN KIRK — 156.25

Dylan needed 43.80 from Jaylen Warren and 37.65 from Jared Goff to survive my third straight game above 154 points. Brissett supplied 34.20, Tyler Warren added 21.40 and the Texans defense chipped in 21.00, and I still managed to draw one of the only three teams in this league capable of beating that number. I remain ahead 8–5 in the all-time series, so he can enjoy the afternoon without rewriting the fucking history books. This is the season's new highest score in a loss, and the commissioner is accepting apologies in writing.

TEAM CRASHEE RICE — 193.50
MOTHMAN FOR MVP — 120.75

Abhik ended Jakob's undefeated run with 52.20 from Drake Maye, 34.40 from Parker Washington and 32.40 from Isaiah Likely. Those three scored 119.00 between them, nearly matching Jakob's entire lineup before the other six starters entered the conversation. The 72.75-point margin is the season's largest, and Abhik managed it while CeeDee Lamb contributed 2.90. Jakob still leads the all-time series 8–5, but this particular chapter reads like an evacuation order.

EL LUCHADORES — 158.05
MARTINSBURG MAN WHORES — 113.45

Puka Nacua's 38.70 gave Jack enough room to leave Christian Watson's 37.30 on the bench and still win comfortably. Dylan Turner got 24.40 out of Garrett Wilson, but Tyson Bagent's 2.05 at quarterback was the fantasy equivalent of sending a fax to a gunfight. Every player on the Martinsburg bench scored zero, so there was no secret winning combination waiting to be discovered. Jack moved ahead 3–2 in the series while Dylan's injury ward kept accepting patients.

JAYDEN NO. 5 — 132.40
CRUISE CONTROL — 85.05

Bucky Irving delivered 32.50 and Trey McBride added 21.60 as Russ cruised past a team whose name is becoming increasingly misleading. Brock Bowers and Ja'Marr Chase combined for 44.70, more than half of Mikey's entire score, while his defense actually deducted a point. Russ missed the weekly mean by less than four tenths and still won by 47.35, which is a fairly efficient use of mediocrity. He now leads Mikey 6–3 across all meetings and 5–1 in the regular season.

MOMMY'S LITTLE ALLSTARS — 119.40
INHOOD TRASH PANDAS — 93.45

Tyler reached 5–0 behind 38.70 from Jahmyr Gibbs and 35.60 from Josh Allen, with the other seven starters combining for a deeply unconvincing 45.10. Justin's Packers defense scored 28.00 on the bench while his Steelers scored 2.00 in the lineup. That one swap turns the afternoon into a 119.45–119.40 Justin win, so Tyler's perfect start survived by the managerial equivalent of five cents. Apparently four below-average wins were included with his championship ring.

YES CHEF!! — 129.90
BEN SIMMONS BLOWS — 119.95

Preston followed his Week 4 eruption with a quieter win built on Joe Burrow's 35.50 and James Cook's 23.80. Campese got 30.10 from Malik Nabers, then watched Jayden Daniels put up 35.25 on his bench while Kyler Murray started for 22.55. Playing Daniels turns the loss into a 132.65–129.90 win, which makes this less a kitchen masterclass than a generous donation. Preston climbed to 2–3 while Campese's losing streak reached four.

GAME FILES · WEEK 6

Everybody Comes Back Down

League average 113.87 · Six games · Final scores

TEAM CRASHEE RICE 149.25
WE ARE CHRISTIAN KIRK 86.15

Abhik made it five straight behind Drake Maye's 33.15, Kenneth Walker's 28.90 and Isaiah Likely's 23.90. DeVonta Smith supplied 20.50 for me, but Bijan's 7.30 and a negative Texans score left very little room to survive. One ugly Sunday does not erase third place in season scoring or four weeks above the league mean, regardless of how badly the rest of you want it to. Abhik deserves this one, and I still lead the all-time series 5–4, so everybody can relax with the revisionist bullshit.

BRING BACK THE 4 FOR 4 150.55
MOTHMAN FOR MVP 108.10

Dylan W. posted the week's highest score with Kirk Cousins at 27.65, Jaxon Smith-Njigba at 26.40 and D'Andre Swift at 23.00. Jakob's Juwan Johnson and Tyjae Spears combined for 1.80, a difficult foundation for a competitive sporting enterprise. Two weeks after sitting at 4–0, Mothman has absorbed consecutive losses by a combined 115.20 points. Dylan's third straight win also pushes his all-time lead over Jakob to 7–3.

EL LUCHADORES 96.65
MOMMY'S LITTLE ALLSTARS 93.85

Jack finally ended Tyler's perfect season while producing the ninth-highest score of the week. Bryce Young's 26.65 did enough to offset 5.00 from Derrick Henry and 1.90 from Harold Fannin, and Tyler's Denzel Boston and Terry McLaurin managed only 6.20 together. Devaughn Vele over Boston would have given Tyler a 98.55–96.65 win, so the man who benefited from Justin's bench in Week 5 immediately became the cautionary tale. Jack has now won with 86.80 and 96.65 this season, a business model I would very much like to try.

INHOOD TRASH PANDAS 137.10
MARTINSBURG MAN WHORES 108.40

Justin snapped a three-game skid with Germie Bernard's 25.70 and 41.20 combined from Jonathan Taylor and Chuba Hubbard. Dylan Turner got 30.70 from Christian McCaffrey and 23.00 from Kyle Pitts, but his quarterback, defense and kicker combined for 13.00. After the Week 5 Packers debacle, Justin at least put the Steelers' 18.00 in the lineup where it belonged. The win levels the series at 3–3 and leaves Martinsburg at 1–5 with very little material for a victory speech.

YES CHEF!! 129.70
JAYDEN NO. 5 108.10

Preston won his third straight with Jordan Love's 25.00 and James Cook's 24.30, barely changing his Week 5 total despite changing quarterbacks. Russ got 24.70 from Bhayshul Tuten and 23.40 from Matthew Golden, but Bucky Irving fell from 32.50 to 6.90. Tyler Shough's 34.40 sat behind Dak's 15.60, although even that swap would have left Russ 2.80 short. Preston is back at .500 after an 0–3 start, and the series is now tied 4–4.

BEN SIMMONS BLOWS 116.50
CRUISE CONTROL 82.10

Campese finally stopped a four-game slide with 29.50 from Malik Nabers and 29.00 from Jayden Daniels, who was mercifully allowed into the starting lineup this time. Mikey started two zeros in Cam Skattebo and DJ Moore, and DK Metcalf's 20.30 could only make the wreckage slightly more presentable. Cruise Control finished last in scoring for the second straight week and has now failed to reach 100 in four of six games. Campese leads the series 7–4, and Mikey's last win remains the one where he inexplicably went nuclear against me.

ROSTER MOVEMENT, NOT CONFIRMED TRADES

The Week 5 and Week 6 rosters show several familiar names changing addresses. The movement below is what the weekly snapshots actually prove: who held each player in each week. It does not establish trade packages, dates, or whether a move went through waivers, and no confirmed trade appears in the available transaction export.

PLAYER OR PLAYERS	WEEK 5 OWNER	WEEK 6 OWNER
Javonte Williams, Michael Wilson, Jaylen Waddle	Cifelli	Jack
Josh Jacobs, David Montgomery, Wan'Dale Robinson	Jack	Cifelli
Drake London	Jack	Tyler
Deebo Samuel, J.K. Dobbins	Tyler	Jack
Alvin Kamara / Keon Coleman	Dylan W. / Preston	Tyler / Dylan W.
Tyler Bass / Roschon Johnson	Cifelli / Abhik	Dylan W. / Jakob

Jack and I now meet in Week 7 with half the conversation already sitting on each other's rosters. His new Javonte scored 13.00 in the win over Tyler, while Jacobs and Montgomery both recorded zeros on my bench. The long-term verdict can wait. For now the scheduling department has accidentally written a decent plot.

Honorable mention for managerial malpractice: Campese's Week 5 Daniels-for-Murray swap also flips a loss into a win. Lowest bench totals were Martinsburg at 0.00 in Week 5 and Yes Chef at 12.00 in Week 6. One bench was a hospital ward, the other barely needed to clock in.

NEXT ISSUE · WEEK 7

Dylan W. and Abhik meet after scoring a combined 664.45 over these two weeks, which makes that the obvious game to watch. I get Jack and the newly rearranged rosters, while Preston takes a three-game winning streak into a meeting with Tyler. Galveston won the Week 6 cross-division slate 4–2, so Cancun has some explaining to do.
